The alternative to traditional schools

ROCHESTER INDEPENDENT COLLEGE is a co-educational day and boarding school offering a distinctive alternative to both traditional independent education and highly selective local grammar schools.

The average class size is eight students, with up to 40 A Level subjects offered in sixth form - from traditional academic ones to creative options like Film, Photography and Music Technology. The Good Schools Guide says:

"It's hard to imagine better provision for an artist."

There is no uniform, no bells and students and staff are on first-name terms. But that doesn't stop RIC from being in the top 5% of UK schools for progress at A-level. Students earn places at a number of leading universities for subjects ranging from Medicine and Dentistry, to Law and English Literature. The focus is on exam success, without unnecessary pressure. At RIC, students learn and achieve more because they enjoy school and feel positive about themselves.

A small university with a community feel

IF YOU'RE NOT sure about university, consider this: are you looking at the right kind? A small university with a supportive community and a focus on high-quality, challenging teaching could be just the antidote to the big, anonymous, research-focused universities.

Plymouth Marjon is proud to be small and different. Students thrive in this atmosphere, and the university is ranked joint 12th in the UK for student satisfaction. Small classes encourage challenging debates, and personal development tutors help students to find their inner talents.
