Sustainable coffee for a greener planet

OUR LOVE FOR coffee has been growing rapidly, but the 2.5 billion disposable cups that it produces have environmental consequences. How are coffee brands responding to this increasing need to be sustainable?

Percol Coffee have been ethical pioneers from day one. They were the first ground coffee to bear the Fairtrade mark back in 1992. They pioneered the use of organic and single use beans and they've spent decades investing in the farmers at source, generation after generation.

More recently, Percol launched the first completely compostable plant-based Nespresso capsules, to help battle the overwhelming amount of waste produced by regular pods. To take things a step further, Percol have also been granted a 'Carbon Neutral' certification from First Climate (firstclimate.com), which makes them one of the first coffee companies to be fully carbon neutral across their entire business.

Their next mission? To be the UK's first plastic-free coffee company, with plans in place to remove all plastic from their packaging.

Can coffee change the world? Well, we won't know until we try. So pour another cup of the good stuff. We've got work to do. percol.co.uk

Duvets that go from sheep to perfect sleep

MEET JESSICA, the intrepid shepherd who is helping to change the face of UK sheep farming, one night and one duvet at a time. She invites you to join the quiet revolution back to wool, where provenance is guaranteed, the materials are renewable and the end result will not end up harming ocean life.

Apart from using wool from her own flock, Jessica knows every farmer from where she sources her British Southdown wool, so all her bedding (duvets, pillows and mattress toppers) is fully traceable from sheep to perfect sleep.

Sustainable, bio-degradable, hypo-allergenic, free from dust mites and just a gloriously comfortable sleep all year round. The duvets can keep you toasty warm in winter, yet cool in summer.

Use the claim coupon ECO18 until 30th November for an exclusive offer of £20 off any Southdown bedding.

Re-inventing woodwork

DAVID COLWELL has chairs in the V&A designed when still a student at the Royal College of Art. But this was never quite enough. The idea that design plays a central role in a sustainable future was what drove him. David's first chairs focusing on comfort and green production appeared in 1979, which were also bought by the V&A. Since then, he has gone on to design chairs that are not only remarkably comfortable and encourage good posture, but they are light and strong, too.

They are, like you, flexible structures made from unseasoned local ash, with a smaller carbon footprint. The flexible structures are enhanced by unique tubular rivet joints to create the perfect chair and table for everyday use in people's homes. Making a sustainable future look really exciting, that's David Colwell's mission.

Jewellery that sets a shining example

INGLE & RHODE is the jeweller of choice for ethically-aware consumers who are unwilling to compromise on quality, craftsmanship or integrity. Specialising in high-quality, ethical engagement rings, their aim is to democratise access to luxury jewellery.

Ingle & Rhode jewellery is designed and made in the UK by some of the most respected craftsmen and women in the industry. They use gold and platinum from certified Fair trade or recycled sources. Their diamonds and gems can be traced back to source, and aren't just guaranteed conflict-free, but also come only from suppliers that treat workers with dignity and respect, and mitigate their impact on the environment.

Ingle & Rhode's clients come from all walks of life, but whatever their backgrounds or budgets, they share a common desire to get it right - by obtaining the finest quality jewellery, without compromising their ethics.

Help a family get out of poverty with a life-saving loo

A SHOCKING 2.3 billion people don't have a safe, hygienic loo. Women and girls are particularly vulnerable as they have to squat in the grass, often late at night. And many girls drop out of school due to a lack of proper toilets.

For £60, you can twin your loo at home or work, and receive a certificate that features the photo of an overseas loo. Or perhaps you'd like to twin someone else's loo for Christmas. Your donation will help us train people living in poverty to build their own toilet and maintain it. Twin your toilet today: go to toiletwinning.org or call 0300 321 3217

Could CBD help to improve your health?

HEMP BOTANICS are the pioneers of the UK CBD industry. CBD (cannabidiol) is a non-psychoactive cannabis treatment that could help combat a number of mental and physical ailments, which could boost one's overall mood and wellbeing. Passionate about providing customers with the highest quality products and services, Hemp Botanics have invested in technology that tests the cannabinoid content of flowers, concentrates and extracts. Hemp Botanics' subsidiary company, Potent-C, is proud to offer a much-needed, affordable and discreet CBD and THC testing service to the public, medical patients and businesses. Their aim is to spread awareness of the healing benefits that cannabinoids can have to offer. For information about testing service visit: hempbotanics.com

Choose spray foam to insulate your home

THERMOHOME specialise in helping UK homeowners regulate the temperature of their homes, through the installation of world-leading spray foam insulation solutions.

With energy bills rising on average 5% per year, we help homeowners to create a warm and comfortable environment all year round by spraying our foam insulation between the roof rafters, creating a warm roof.

Many homes in the UK use layers of fibreglass insulation, laid on the loft floor. This prevents the loft being used for storage, as well as becoming a harbouring home for dust and nasty pests.

Our solutions are innovative and are rapidly becoming a popular choice for UK homeowners, who wish to invest in a long-term option for their insulation.

Spray foam is a one-time only installation, guaranteed for 25 years to help future-proof the home against the rising cost of heating.

Use quote "GES" to ensure that you receive a 15% discount on our quoted prices, if used before 31st January 2019.
